It's great to be back on with you. And it's great to talk to the good people of my home state, Kansas, Missouri.

Let's just dive into this book here, as we have a few minutes with Mr. Secretary. And when you look back on your time, CIA director, Secretary of State, you guys really did I believe, change the model in terms of how this country views China, its relationship with China, and how we operate when it comes to everything from business to foreign policy? How much? Yeah, go ahead how much this was something that you really wanted to push forward with?

Yeah, no, this was this was my priority. It's one of the reasons I wrote never give an inch i, we have given interest to the Chinese Communist Party for 40 years. And they took miles and they built their economy on the backs of the American worker, folks from Kansas, folks from Iowa, folks from Missouri, the heartland was decimated by the Chinese stealing our intellectual property, stealing our jobs and then dumping that product back into the United States. And we flipped the script. And we finally acknowledged that China is a threat to the United States and began to push back against it in ways that are really important and never give an inch. I write about why this matters to every citizen. You know, I hear people say, Well, Mike, Beijing seems a long ways away, or Taiwan seems a long ways away, I totally get that. But in the end, it impacts us so much here at home Kansas farmers folks in Missouri, that are making stuff and manufacturing plants, how we treat China and the fact that we let them walk all over us for four decades is simply unacceptable. And we began to turn this script in ways that will matter to every American.
